【授業の概要・目的】
The purpose of Seminar Participation is to equip learners with the necessary communication skills to engage with the academic community, expand their intellectual interests, and improve critical thinking skills. Current topics from the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences will be explored from an interdisciplinary perspective with a primary emphasis on academic speaking and listening. Students will be expected to express their ideas in various types of settings (i.e. group discussion, debate, presentations) and prepare for these exchanges by listening to and viewing audio and video materials outside of class. A central part of this course will be group discussions, both in class and in an online forum. Therefore, active participation of students is crucial to the success of this course. Regarding academic speaking, students are expected to exercise their ability to express their views in discussions, debate and journal writing, as well as improve comprehensibility through pronunciation practice. Regarding academic listening, students are expected to perform self-directed listening tasks using various types of audio and video recordings. These materials will be used to provide additional information to feed in-class discussions. Presentations and group work will be considered in the assessment of students for the completion of this course.
【到達目標】
By the end of this course, students will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> -understand the role of discussion and debate in an academic setting. -initiate and maintain a conversation -articulate a complete idea relating to a specified topic -respond to other classmates' ideas and opinions -manage a conversation in various settings using discussion strategies, such as agreeing/disagreeing, asking for clarification, changing the topic, etc. -present and support opinions in a logical manner -paraphrase an idea in order to clarify or verify information -orally summarize ideas from in-class discussions and listening materials -produce appropriate sentence and word stress-patterns -understand the differences in pronunciation for academic vocabulary -understand conversations of varying degrees of formality -demonstrate comprehension through verbal and non-verbal cues in conversation -interpret intended meaning in conversation and make predictions of the outcome -understand the main ideas in longer listening passages -identify discourse markers in extended speech and discussions -identify the purpose of statements and supporting information in oral discourse

【授業外学修 (予習・復習) 等】

Students are required to listen to assigned materials outside of class, reflect and comment on the themes presented in these materials using an online forum, and prepare discussion points for in-class participation. To prepare for listening quizzes and speaking assessments, students must review listening materials and notes taken during classes. Additional research and planning may be necessary to prepare for presentations.

【その他 (オフィスアワー等) 】

Students are advised to be able to use online learning tools (online discussion forum, podcasts) for work outside of class.
