first class.

【履修要件】

There are no specific requirements for taking this seminar.

However, students must be willing to prepare each session by completing the weekly readings and assigned tasks, and to participate actively in class.

【成績評価の方法・観点】

Evaluation will be based on class attendance and active participation (70%), a mid-term group work or presentation (10%) and final group or individual presentations (20%).

Active participation means actively listening and engaging with the class content, participating during discussions and group work, and contributing to the class by sharing opinions, experiences and reflections. It also means taking notes and reviewing them each week, since each class will start with a quick recap of the previous week done by a student.

Students absent 3 times or more will fail this class.

Tardiness (by 15 minutes or more) will be treated as absence.

Systematic tardiness and/or unexplained early departures will greatly reduce your attendance and participation grade.

【教科書】

There is no textbook for this seminar.

Weekly readings will be available for download.

Printing and preparing the material is the responsibility of the student.

【参考書等】

(参考書)

A list of suggested readings will be available for download.

【授業外学修(予習・復習)等】

Students are expected to prepare for each class by completing the weekly readings and assigned tasks.

They are also expected to take notes during class and review them for the following week. (Each session will start by a quick recap of the previous week done by a student).

【その他(オフィスアワー等)】

- This is a seminar-type class, and as such will rely heavily on in-class discussion and student participation. It will be conducted in English. All readings and material will also be in English.

- As stated in the evaluation section, students are expected to engage actively during class. The level of engagement will greatly influence the final grade (participation counts for 70% of the total grade).

- Office hour is after class or by appointment.
