【授業の概要・目的】
This is a small-sized seminar-type class for students wishing to learn how to read critically in English by reading texts from leading scholars and commentators on on modern democracy. The class will introduce key issues surrounding democracy, including its history, definition, limits, and current challenges. We will be reading articles in journals and papers such as Foreign Affairs, New York Review of Books, the Economist, and the Guardian on ongoing topics relating to the health of democracy such as populism, inequality, social media, and illiberalism. You do not need to have prior knowledge in political science or social sciences, or be a native English speaker/writer to join this seminar.
【到達目標】
The goal of this seminar is for students to learn how to critically read and evaluate the theoretical arguments and empirical evidence provided in the very best of political science literature. Such an intense reading should train non-native English speakers to improve both their English reading and comprehension, but also their engagement with academic texts in other languages. Students are expected to be active in presenting and formulating their ideas during the course, giving them opportunity to improve their output in English.
【授業計画と内容】
Each class will involve a student presentation of the reading assignment (20 pages or so) and an in-class discussion of the text. The texts that will be read will be determined according to student interest and capacity at the beginning of the term.
