[授業の概要・目的]
To understand the history of the Twentieth Century we need to understand the impact of the First World War. The First World War, or the Great War, marked a turning point; it shaped the course of twentieth century international relations and its history. Often referred to as European war, this course instead highlights the global and long lasting impact of the conflict. The main purpose of this course is to help us to understand how the First World War shaped the development of the history of the twentieth century right up to the present. Many of the issues and conflicts facing us today can trace their origins to the Great War. Indeed the world of the Great War, over one hundred years ago looks unsettlingly familiar, with conflict in the Middle East, fighting in Ukraine, and a world coming to terms with a global pandemic. Taking 4 main themes: war, imperialism, revolution, and post-war recovery, we will discuss the changes in the international order effected by the First World War and new methods of international cooperation and their long lasting impact.
