[授業の概要・目的]
In this course we will explore the central themes of the philosophy of nature in the context of the question of the animal and animality. Although "animal" and "nature" are not interchangeable categories, they are closely linked in the history of thought. From the problematization of these concepts, we will try to deconstruct the concept of nature and investigate the ethical significance of these problems in our present time.
[到達目標]
Students will learn about the most recent issues in the field of philosophy of nature and animal and environmental ethics. At the same time, emphasis will be placed on the exercise of logical and discursive argumentation. Students will be able to discern the different philosophical levels within the semantic field of the “ natural ” .

another student. Students should make a sincere effort to understand the missed material before contacting the instructor. It is very important that you read the assigned texts BEFORE class. Otherwise, it will be difficult to follow the class. Of course, if you don't understand something, you can ask during class. The instructor is willing to help students understand the material, but is not willing to give a second lecture to those who miss class.

Course Readings:

Students are expected to complete all required readings for class and assignments, and should come to class familiar with the course material to be discussed. It is possible that the order of the readings may be changed, or that some materials may be omitted or added to the reading schedule. Any changes in the reading schedule will be announced in advance.

There are OBLIGATORY readings and OPTIONAL readings.

I will NOT upload my slides. Please take notes.

Evaluation:

We will have regular quizzes on Panda. These will be simple comprehension questions.

The final exam will consist of similar questions and will be given in person.

I will expect you to be physically and mentally present for each session. I also expect you to participate in class. Participation includes active class participation.

Normally, each quiz will be worth 10 points.

Quizzes will count toward your final grade.

The final exam is worth 60% of your grade. If you do not take the final exam, you will not pass the course!

(If you are unable to take the exam for health reasons, you may make up the exam, but you must notify me in advance).

Class participation and some small assignments count as extra credit. This means that you can get extra credit for class participation (including asking questions) and other small assignments.

What to do if I don't understand?

If you don't understand something, ask. This is an introductory course and in English, so it is normal not to understand some things at first. If you do not understand a word in English, ask the teacher or TA.

Philosophical texts are difficult at first. You will have to read them more than once. If you don't understand, ask! That's the point. You can contact me anytime.
