| This course will offer an introduction to premodern Japanese history (~1600) from a global perspective. That is, we will approach the Japanese archipelago not as an isolated territory that seamlessly transformed into the nation state as we now know it, but as a geographical hub that has been shaped by various “ foreign ” encounters through the centuries. We will look at how trade, war, diplomacy and ideas fostered international connections that have played crucial roles in deciding the trajectory of Japan ’ s development. |            |  |     |    |        |           |                |      |                                 |      |     |  |

| Upon the successful completion of this course, students will: (1) have a general understanding of the major periods and events of Japanese premodern history. (2) gain a sensibility for the way in which the history of nation states is intimately bound up with, and cannot be told separately from global events.   |            |  |     |    |        |           |                |      |                                 |      |     |  |

Japanese History I-E2(2)

【教科書】

使用しない

Although this class does not feature any required readings, it does recommend you familiarize yourself with the general outline of the period under discussion each class.

【授業外学修（予習・復習）等】

Reviewing class notes and possibly clarifying unclear items through independent study.

【その他（オフィスアワー等）】

Students should be aware of the fact that student interest in this course always exceeds its capacity and that enrollment permission will be decided based on a random lottery.

Students who have inquiries of any kind are welcome to contact me by email. In doing so, however, please heed the following:

1. clearly indicate your name and the class to which your question pertains.
2. write in either Japanese or English, whichever language you are most proficient in.
3. write in a formal format appropriate to the university setting.

Emails that do not conform to all of these items will be sent back without a response.
