[Overview and purpose of the course]
The meaning and nature of religion and its function is the main subject of this course. We will look at the interaction between religion, as a text and culture, and social and anthropological theories. In practice, students will discover something of an emphasis on functionality of religion based on its history, text and reception. This reflects two simple facts: (a) first, the lecturer ' s key competencies lie in method and theory; and (b) certain important theories in social sciences. The last session will take the form of a conversation with a well-versed scholar of religion in which you are encouraged to ask questions. Course Structure For a better understanding, this course is divided into two parts: A) General debates examining recent developments in religious studies since the last century. This part surveys to what extent social, philological, political and philosophical debates in the 20th century have affected our understanding of scriptures and their application in society; B) Thematic topics with a particular focus on the works of thinkers who have had an influence on public understanding of religion and social sciences. In all sessions, students are encouraged to ask questions and to participate in discussions.
[Course objectives]
Enthusiastic students who successfully complete this course will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>o Demonstrate an informed understanding of relationships between religion and modern social sciences</li> <li>o Discuss critically modern theories about religion</li> </ul>

[Evaluation methods and policy]

General Information about Assessment Overview

Your assessment consists of two components: (1) A 2000-word essay 1 (35 %) For the first assignment students should choose a topic based on our first 6 sessions. Students are not expected to adapt or replace the title of the essay. Any alteration to the title of the essay must be discussed with the lecturer. (2) The final exam, which is worth 65% of your grade. Information on the examination format will be handed out mid-semester. Because of the precise format of your essay assignments, I provide students with a document on about my expectations for their essay work.

Read through all provided information very carefully, at the beginning of the semester, taking time to absorb its contents, so that you may get to work in an efficient and pleasurable manner, rather than go down dead-end avenues of investigation or end up otherwise frustrated. Then come back, and come often! If you have any questions at all about your assignment, please do not hesitate to contact me. Above all: Be timely with your work. Begin early; it is the only insurance you have against hurry, stress, and in the end inferior work (to say nothing of possible late penalties). The more effort you put in the early stages, the easier you will find everything; the later you are, the more difficult things become.

[Textbooks]

Not used

Textbook and readings

There is specific readings for every sessions. They are divided into three types: Required readings must be prepared to follow the course outline and comprehend the framework of every session Recommended readings can be applied to develop the arguments and contents of essays. Further readings are suggested for enthusiastic students who are interested in knowing more about a specific subject. The Readings schedule covers all the materials needed for successful completion of the course; beyond these, some Further Reading is given for each learning unit.

[Study outside of class (preparation and review)]

No prior knowledge of religion is required. Students should be able to participate in discussions with their classmates in English. This may be face-to-face small group discussion or online. Students may also be asked to make short presentations in English based on the class topics.
