(対策) Introduction to Sociology of Work-E2 職者・氏者     (         中田本 人文・社会科学科目群 分野(分類) 教育・心理・社会(各論) 使用言語 英         日群 A群 単位数 2単位 週コマ数 1コマ 授業形態 講義 (対面授業)         [         間講 應: 2025・後期 曜時限 水3 配当学年 全回生 対象学生         [         授業の概要・目的]     Work is a central institution of modern capitalist societies, and sociology plays a central role in i         During this lecture, several core theories, case studies, and international comparisons of labor m         ndustries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial developmen         societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market         sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Stu         a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understat         levelopment of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays.         [ [19連目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a criation be introduced to illustrate these approaches.         [ [79葉計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction         Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations         Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society         Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets         Week 5. Firms and Corporations         Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	主 全学向 its analysis. harkets and ht of industriat et, the udents acquire
旧群 A群 単位数 2単位 週コマ数 1コマ 授業形態 講義(対面授業)	科目) 主 全学向 its analysis. narkets and nt of industria et, the udents acquir
Image       2025・後期       曜時限       水3       配当学年       全回生       対象学生         [授業の概要・目的]       Work is a central institution of modern capitalist societies, and sociology plays a central role in its       During this lecture, several core theories, case studies, and international comparisons of labor m         During this lecture, several core theories, case studies, and international comparisons of labor m       ndustries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial developmen         societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understate development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays.         [J]建目標]       The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critabout the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies.         [[] 授業計画と内容]         Week 1. Introduction         Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations         Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society         Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets         Week 5. Firms and Corporations         Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	主 全学向 its analysis. harkets and ht of industria et, the udents acquire
[授業の概要・目的]         Work is a central institution of modern capitalist societies, and sociology plays a central role in industries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial development societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Struct a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understand development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays.         [到達目標]         The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a criticabout the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies.         [投業計画と内容]         Week 1. Introduction         Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations         Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society         Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets         Week 5. Firms and Corporations         Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	its analysis. harkets and ht of industria et, the udents acquire
Work is a central institution of modern capitalist societies, and sociology plays a central role in in During this lecture, several core theories, case studies, and international comparisons of labor metadotic industries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial development societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Stude a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understand development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [①] 「到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critical approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [[授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	harkets and nt of industria et, the udents acquire development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a crit about the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	harkets and nt of industria et, the udents acquire
During this lecture, several core theories, case studies, and international comparisons of labor m ndustries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial developmen societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Stu a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understant levelopment of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critical approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. Atudies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	harkets and nt of industria et, the udents acquire ndustries are presented, analyzed and discussed. Students learn about the histrocial developmen societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Sta a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understand development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a crit about the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	nt of industria et, the udents acquire societies, the current postindustrial labor institutions, the specificity of the Japanese labor market sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Stu a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understand development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a crite about the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	et, the udents acquire sociopolitical construction of several markets, and the welfare regimes in different countries. Str a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understand development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a criticabout the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	udents acquire a sound knowledge about important sociological theories on work, and in parallel they understandevelopment of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critabout the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	- development of capitalist societies from the 19th century until nowadays. [到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a crit about the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
[到達目標] The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critation of the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
The course aims at understanding the basics of sociology of work, so that students develop a critation of the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1) about the functioning and the social functions of this institution. Students will therefore acquire several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	tical sense several approaches and theories dealing with the role of work in our modern capitalist societies. studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1) studies will also be introduced to illustrate these approaches. [授業計画と内容] Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
【授業計画と内容】 Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)	Beverar case
Week 1. Introduction Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 2. Theories of Work and Organizations Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 3. Taylorism, Fordism, and the Industrial Society Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 4. The Sociopolitical Construction of Markets Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 5. Firms and Corporations Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 6. The Emergence of Service Industries (1)
Week 7. The Emergence of Service Industries (2)
Week 8. Review Class
Week 9. The EU Single Market and Labor Issues
Week 10. Labor & Industrial Relations in Japan (1)
Week 10. Labor & Industrial Relations in Japan (2)
Week 12. The Dual Labor Market (1)
Week 12. The Dual Labor Market (1) Week 13. The Dual Labor Market (2)
Week 13. The Dual Labor Market (2) Week 14. Conclusions
The lectures will be delivered in English. There are no prerequisite to take this course, though it better to have some basic sociological knowledge.	111
[成績評価の方法・観点]	would be would be
Final report (70%), class attendance (30%)	: would be

Introduction to Sociology of Work-E2(2)へ続く

Introduction to Sociology of Work-E2(2)

[教科書]

授業中に指示する

[参考書等]

(参考書)

授業中に紹介する

[授業外学修(予習・復習)等]

During each class, the first ten-fifteen minutes are dedicated to the review of the previous class. Students are asked to prepare each lesson on a weekly basis.

[その他(オフィスアワー等)]

Students should email the teacher to make an appointment.

[主要授業科目 (学部・学科名)]