[授業の概要・目的]

In today’s interconnected world, vibrant and dynamic societies are shaped by people on the move; individuals born in one country and living in another. This course offers an in-depth look at global migration trends and the diverse experiences of those who relocate and build lives in foreign lands.

As a seminar-based course, it focuses on human migration patterns, particularly in the Asia-Pacific, Southeast Asia, and other global regions. Through interactive discussions and activities, students will explore the complex realities of migration, examining its causes, challenges, and far-reaching impacts on individuals, communities, and nations.

This course will deepen your understanding of how migration transforms the world;and how it continues to shape the societies we live in today.

[到達目標]

On this course students will do the following:

1. Understand Why People Move
Gain a critical introduction to the reasons behind migration and the current issues driving people to relocate.
2. Explore the Impact of Migration
Examine how migration issues influence our everyday lives and shape the experiences of migrants, immigrants, and refugees in today’s globalized world.
3. Engage in Interactive Learning
Participate in weekly sessions that include brief lectures (based on readings and class notes), class discussions, and group exercises to deepen understanding and encourage collaborative learning.
4. Develop Critical Thinking
Reflect on the human dimensions of migration and build analytical skills to evaluate how globalization affects movement and its broader societal implications.

This course aims for thoughtful discussion and provide students with the tools to critically analyze migration as a key issue in our interconnected world.
