[授業の概要・目的]

This course introduces students to the field of social psychology by surveying a variety of topics on the psychology of everyday social interactions, relationships, groups, cultures, and society.

We will explore the social psychological answers to questions about our daily lives and real worlds. For example, how do we form impressions about people when we first meet? How do people end up with different worldviews? Why are some people so effective at persuading the people around them? When are we most likely to obey authority or conform to the group? Do groups make different decisions than individuals? Are humans capable of altruistic behavior? Do video games and tv make us more aggressive?

[到達目標]

At the end of the course, students will be able to:
1. Compare and contrast foundational theories and research about social cognition, influence, and relationships.
2. Identify and explain the organizing themes and assumptions that drive these theories.
3. Demonstrate ethical, critical consumption of psychological research, such as evaluating claims made in the news.
4. Apply social psychological research and principles to current issues in society.

This course also develops students’ communication and critical thinking skills in English.
