[Overview and purpose of the course]
By solving Modern Standard Arabic (Fusha) practice problems accompanied by detailed explanations, students will aim to acquire and solidify basic grammar, vocabulary, and expressions, through interactive exercises of weekly learnt material. This class is aimed at beginners who have never studied Arabic. There are two forms of Arabic: the standard form, Fusha (Modern Standard Arabic), and the regional spoken forms, Anmiyah. In this class, you will learn Fusha (Modern Standard Arabic). As an Arab myself, I bring not only linguistic expertise but also the cultural depth and soul of the Arabic language into the classroom. In teaching Arabic to Japanese students at Kyoto University, I aim to connect language with lived culture, history, and ways of thinking, allowing students to engage with Arabic as a living, expressive medium rather than a set of grammatical rules.
[Course objectives]
In the first semester, the following goals will be achieved: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - To be able to understand simple Arabic sentences while building on the grammar points learned in grammar class - To be able to make simple greetings and self-introductions - To acquire a basic understanding of the language, culture, society, and history of Arabic-speaking regions
[Course schedule and contents]
Learning is linked to grammar lessons. Through practice questions and other activities, students will solidify the foundations of the four language skills (reading, listening, speaking, and writing). Class 1: Lesson 0: Letters and Pronunciation, Let's Write Your Names Class 2: Lesson 1: Gender.
